Nuisance Grounds Discussed By Council

LAC LA BICHE—At the recent meeting of the Town Council the subject of the nuisance grounds was discussed at length. The present arrangement seems to be somewhat unsatisfactory, and the general public are not offering much co-operation. A quick look at the grounds—not to mention the obnoxious smell — will convince everyone that something definitely has to be done.

The town officials are hoping to purchase a site for a private grounds, which will be put under strict supervision. However, it has not as yet been decided whether they will co-operate with the Provincial Public Works Department, and operate on a combined grounds or a private one. Immaterial of what the decision will be, it will be up to all the citizens to adhere to the laws to help keep the place in a decent condition, and an asset to the town.

CANADIAN CATTLE HEAD FOR U.S. MARKETS

Canadian cattle, for the first time since the recent lifting of the United States embargo, moved out of St. Boniface Stock Yards by Canadian National Railways for the United States. The initial shipment totalled 178 calves.

The top picture shows the method used by Federal Department of Agriculture veterinarians in inspecting export cattle at the stock yards before being loaded into C.N.R. stock cars. If the cattle are for feeding and finishing on U.S. farms, they must undergo a 72-hour T.B. test and be pronounced "negative."

Inset, shows a government inspector sealing the door of a railway stock car after Canadian export cattle were loaded, this precaution being taken to preserve identity and prevent substitution.

In normal year, the Union Stock Yards in St. Boniface handle 500,000 head of cattle and 300,000 sheep, lambs and hogs.

Other stock yards in Canada handling cattle for direct export to the United States are located in Vancouver, Edmonton, Calgary, Saskatoon, Prince Albert, Moose Jaw, Toronto and Montreal.

Oil Worker Is Drowned

FORT ASSINIBOINE (BUP) — John Myers, a 19-year-old oil worker, was drowned when his car plunged into a creek at Fort Assiniboine, 80 miles northwest of Edmonton.

RCMP said two boys found the submerged car and the body was recovered five hours later.

Police said Myers, an employee of Amerada Oil, apparently tried to ford the Nigger Creek in his car by driving across it over a treacherous earth fill. There was no bridge nearby.

The creek, swollen by spring rainfall and melting snow from the Rockies, was flowing over the earth fill and the car tumbled into deep water. The driver was unable to struggle clear of his car before drowning.

Wheat Pool Distributes $2,220,000 To Patrons

Patronage cheques totalling $570,000 were mailed to members of the Alberta Wheat Pool Tuesday who delivered their grain to Pool elevators in the 1951-52 crop year.

Also issued was a distribution of Wheat Pool reserves of a total value of $1,650,000 as a patronage dividend to the same members. The total value of the distribution thus made is $2,220,000. Dividend rate was 3.9 cents on wheat and flax and 1.9 on oats, barley and rye.

System adopted by the Pool is to redeem reserves, which represent ownership of the organization, from older members and redistribute them to current patrons of Pool elevators. This plan provides that the ownership of the co-operative will be kept in the hands of operating farmers.

LIVEWEIGHT TRACTION

gives farming a real boost!

When your field work calls for more real pull, liveweight traction will see you through.

The hydraulic TRACTION BOOSTER in the CA and WD Tractors changes deadweight to liveweight. Weight of both tractor and implement is automatically shifted to bear down on drive wheels when soil is stubborn and tillage is tough.

The hydraulic TRACTION BOOSTER reduces wheel slippage — enables the CA and WD to do drawbar jobs that normally would require heavier tractors.

Stop in and let us show you how it works.

The Prime Minister

Many Canadians know more about the President of the United States than they do of their own Prime Minister. Here are a few interesting facts. Rt. Hon. Louis St. Laurent was born on February 1st, 1882, at Compton, Quebec. His father was a French-Canadian and his mother was Mary Broderick, an Irish-Canadian. As a child he talked English to his mother and French to his father. He became Prime Minister in 1948.

Mr. Menzies, the Australian P.M., said before his last election that he was not "born in the purple." Mr. St. Laurent was not either but both have seen a good deal of it in recent years. They have much in common. The parents in both cases were small-town storekeepers. Both youths turned to law and both graduated from universities in their own countries. Mr. St. Laurent refused a Rhodes Scholarship to continue his law studies, and Mr. Menzies was called to the bar at the age of 23. Both were brilliant students and successful lawyers. Both pleaded cases before the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council.

When they reached the prime-ministership in their respective countries, each appointed a native-born subject of the Queen to be Governor-General of the country of their birth.

Mr. Menzies is 13 years younger than Canada's Prime Minister, but both are in excellent health. Mr. Menzies has been in politics longer than has Mr. St. Laurent and is probably more of a campaigner, although less exact as a lawyer.

These men would, materially, have been much better off if they had never entered politics, but each has made a contribution to the general welfare that cannot be measured in dollars.

Good News On Spinach

Many a younster, who has no particular liking for spinach, will welcome the news from London which reveals that two medical researchers have concluded that spinach may imperil the health of youngsters when eaten regularly. Doctors Joan E. Bamji and N. S. Bamji, of London, have advanced the theory that the intense dislike of spinach, demonstrated by many children, is only nature's way of protecting them from its harmful effects.

The theory is that an acid in spinach interferes with the body's absorption of calcium, needed in all young bodies to build strong bones and teeth, and thus the harm from spinach exceeds the good it might do. In addition, the same acid might cause a condition which damages the kidneys, according to the theory.

We have long suspected that, in some cases at least, an intense dislike for certain foods might have some physiological connectinn. There is also, we are told, a psychological factor which comes into the picture with many foods, although we are not speaking of that now.

Certainly, it would be encouraging if there is some basis for an intense dislike of foods, other than psychological. Of course, if this theory is carried to the extreme, and children are allowed to eat what they please, the result might be worse than the mistakes likely to be made in properly planning diets. Thus, we do not advise parents to allow children to eat what they want to eat.

We have also suspected secretly, at times, that there is something in the craving for a specific food, which the human body sometimes develops. This seems to be a pretty good theory, except when the craving is for ice-cream, candy or cake.

Men Of Valor

This generation has reason to glory in the latent capacities of human nature. Consider courage. We now know that bravery is one of the most common of virtues. A veritable library would be required to contain the record of heroism in battle, gallantry under fire, fortitude in foxholes, sacrificial devotion to comrades, laying down of life for a friend, rendering full measure of devotion to the cause of freedom. Hats off to human nature!

The Bible Today

Let us therefore follow after the things which make for peace, and things wherewith one may edify another.—Romans, XIV; 19.

Of Many Things

By AMBROSE HILLS

"I had all the knowledge I really needed when I was seventeen, but unfortunately I didn't realize it," a businessman said the other day.

"What do you mean, you didn't realize it?" I asked him.

"Well", he told me, "here's an example. My father used to say, 'Always get down to brass tacks'. When we youngsters talked in circles or expounded theories, he'd bring us to earth and make us spell out what we meant in terms of real people, real places, and real things. He called it getting down to brass tacks. I'd have saved myself a lot of business worry and grief if I'd applied that practice to some of the half-baked ideas sold to me. Today, in business meetings, I insist that fancy ideas get tied to real things or get thrown out the window. But it took me a long time to learn that lesson."

He gave other examples but I didn't need them. I have plenty of my own. I guess we all have. Our parents or teachers told us most of the sidewalk virtues long ago, but we only half listened.

In my final year at school I had a professor who would walk into class and say, "Here's your lesson in composition: describe the smell of hot, buttered toast. When you finish that, write out the difference between a waltz and a fox trot."

We thought he was crazy. The smell of hot buttered toast was—well, now, it was—why, it was like the smell of hot, buttered toast!

But of course that didn't satisfy him. He wanted you to get down to brass tacks. In everything. If you said, "It was a beautiful autumn day," he wanted to know why you thought so. What did the sky look like? What colors could you see in the trees? What kind of trees? Maple, oak, hemlock? He kept insisting that you put real names to real things. If you talked about a road you traveled he wanted to know if it was gravel or concrete, rough or smooth. He was a great man for getting down to brass tacks.

Maybe that teacher was odd. But I'll say this for him—boys and girls who sat in his class never get taken in by gobbledygook. Fancy phrases like "Production for use and not for profit" don't get by them. They want to know what production. Aren't the goods produced today being used? What is profit? Isn't it the opposite of loss? How do you get this production you talk about? Will the producer be able to use it or does he give it away? Such questions embarrass political quacks. They don't want to be nailed to real things; they don't want to recognize the fact that to produce milk, for example, you must raise more cows and milk 'em. That's too hard! They prefer to have you think they can wave a wand at Ottawa or spout a theory on the platform and milk will start to flow like magic.

Sometimes when I hear political speeches on the radio I feel like shouting into the speaker, "Come on, get down to brass tacks!" Politicians love the radio, because you can't look too closely at what they say. They hate the press because newspaper writers are trained to look for facts and ask questions. When words and wind are trimmed from a lot of speeches not much remains.

It might be good for us to think back to the wisdom of parents and teachers once in awhile. We didn't always soak it up. It is not too late to start. Any time is a good time to get down to brass tacks!

On Dumb Women

Viscountess Astor, Virginia-born lady, who often makes the headlines with her quips, recently spoke out on women, 1953-version. The first woman to sit in the British Parliament blasted her own sex in a speech before an organization which has long pressed for women's rights.

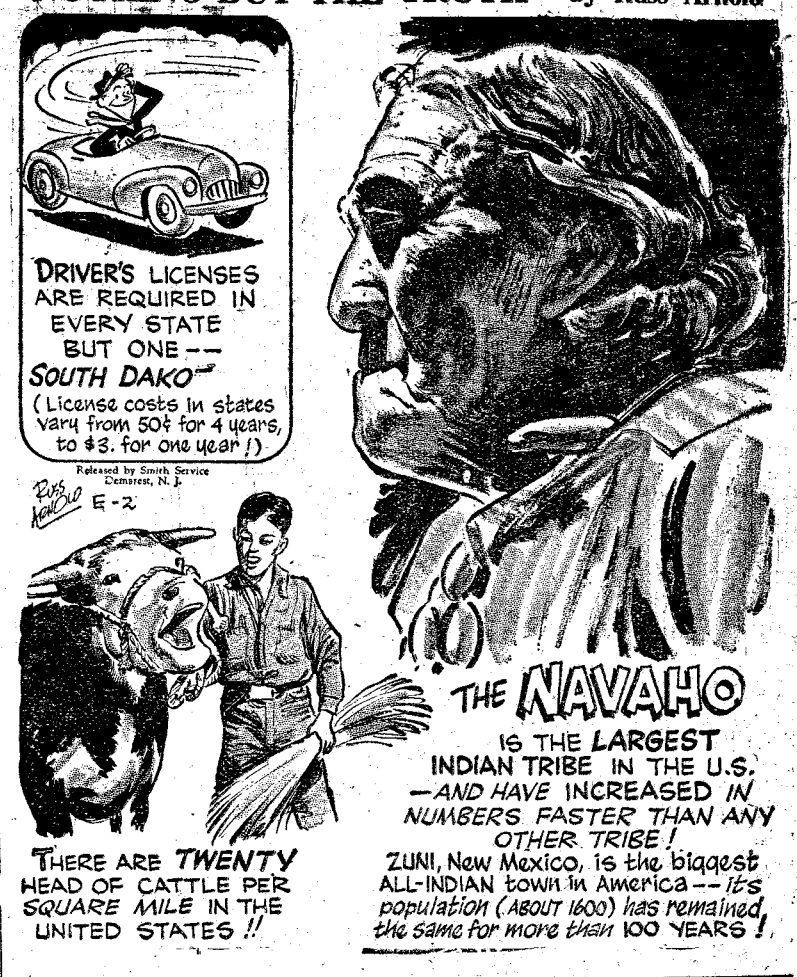
Viscountess Astor says: "Women today take everything for granted," and that they "have a dumbness about them because they do not know why we got the vote." She also said that women seem to get dumber and dumber.

Lady Astor is obviously bitter at the members of her own sex, all the reasons for which we do not pretend to know. However, it seems to us that she is off the track on the issue of women's mentality. Instead of getting dumber and dumber, all the evidence seems to indicate that women are making progress in every major field and that they are more capable and more intelligent than ever before.

And as for dumbness—because they do not know why they got the vote—that charge is a legitimate one concerning many members of the opposite sex. So we cannot agree with Lady Astor, especially when she says glamorous women make her sick.

Obvious, some fellow members of her own sex have ruffled the feathers of the British M.P.

NOTHING BUT THE TRUTH by Russ Arnold



Voice of the People

WHO STARTED IT?

In a recent paper, credit as the founder of Mother's Day was given to Anna Jarvis. In English's Opera House, Indianapolis, Ind., there is a plaque giving this credit to Frank Hering, then a young professor from Notre Dame. He proposed such a day from the stage there on Feb. 7, 1904. He later became a Grand Worthy President of the Fraternal Order of Eagles. In 1912, the F.O.E. Grand Aerie passed a statute calling for annual observance of Mother's Day. In 1914 the U.S. Congress established it as the second Sunday in May. This date—but not Mother's Day itself—was suggested by Miss Jarvis, as her own mother had died on the second Sunday of May.

FOR UNION NOW

Canada and the U.S.A. should be one big country. I have advocated this brotherly union for the last 25 years among all the people I know. Let's have no more of this stupid, imaginary separation line. Canadians should have sense enough to let go of their infantile attachments. e Wshould have the vision to admit that we cannot do anything really big without the U.S.A.

FOR KINDER CRITICS

Why do so many critics of the theatre and motion pictures do their utmost to drive actors, producers, directors and writers out of their field by their vicious criticism? These critics seem to presume that their personal views are shared by everyone on earth. Why don't they merely advise the public that they didn't find the show enjoyable, together with their reasons?

To S. R. of Darwell went a cheque of $1.00 for this Embarrassing Moment.

Lately when I was in Edmonton, my mother went to buy a coat and told me where to wait for her at a certain place. After waiting for about a half an hour, I thought I saw my mother. I walked up to her and said, "That sure is an awful coat you bought," and the lady replied, "I am not your mother." I was sure embarrassed when she gave me that look.

For this Embarrassing Moment we have sent Larry Perper $1.00.

THE LIGHTER SIDE

To Be Expetced

"That sailor I was with last night sure was a fast worker."

"What do you expect of a fleet man?"

Which Are You?

The pessimist fearfully asks, "Is there any milk in the pitcher,"

The optimist confidently says, "Please pass the cream."

Never

Breathes there a man with soul so dead,
Who's never turned his head and said, "Not bad!"

Slap

She—Your most serious ailment is insomnia.

Cheap

"Didn't he find that pretty expensive?"

"Yes, but it's the cheapest kind of wedding ring there is."

Always

"I suppose nothing is too good for that pretty little wife of yours."

"No, no matter how good things are I bring her she always must have something better!"

Closely Watched

Minister: "I do wish I could think of some way to make the members of the congregation pay attention to me when I'm preaching."

Son: "Why don't you put the clock right behind the pulpit?"

On the Finnish Front

1st Finnish Soldier: "Just 40 degrees below this morning."

2nd One: 'Can't last. Just Indian summer."

Not a Museum Piece

"I'd give $10 for a little tin whistle."

'Are they so scarce now?"

'No, but this one I'm thinking of belongs to the boy downstairs."

3 New Forest Fires Burning In Alberta

EDMONTON — Three new forest fires were reported in Alberta Thursday of last week.

J. L. Janssen, chief timber inspector, said the most serious new outbreak is south of Sturgeon Lake in the Grande Prairie - High Prairie region. Fifty men with six bulldozers are fighting this blaze.

The other new outbreaks are north of Grande Prairie and north of Lesser Slave Lake.

Sixteen fires were reported burning in northern Alberta, but Mr. Janssen thought that many of these now are under control, if not out.

A Date

"Say, Buddy, can you let me have a dime for a glass of milk?"

"I thought milk was only a nickel."

"Yeah, but I have a date."

$1 for Favorite RECIPE

Dear Sir—I read the recipes of the Chronicle and they are very good. One of my favorite recipes is as follows:

CHOCOLATE FUDGE

Ingredients:

1 cup whites ugar
1 cup brown sugar
¼ cup syrup
½ cup sweetmilk
¼ cup melted butter.

Method:

Boil 2½ min. then add 2 tsp. cocoa, boil 5 min. longer, then take from stove and add 1 tsp. vanilla. Beat until creamy, then pour into buttered pan and mark in squares. Half cup of chopped nuts may be added upon removal from the heat if desired.

Yours truly,
SANDY SEELEY,

This splendid recipe has earned for Sandy Seeley $1.00.

LETTER TO LOUISA

Girls Breaks Engagement With Man She No Longer Loves; Mother Objects

Dear Louisa—

I'm nineteen years old. I had been going steady with B for two years. We had planned on being married but things really happened. I had even accepted a lovely cedar chest last year for my birthday. We broke up because I didn't like him any more. I just grew tired of him.

Now I have been going very steady with the boy who was our class president in High School. I've really fallen in love with him and he with me. Everything is going fine except for my mother. She just keeps harping about B, how lonesome he must be, how I've broken his heart, how I've sinned and everything like that. But I think I'm old enough to know and why should I waste any more time with B when I don't care for him the least little way? I'm very happy with Tom.

I wish I could make my mother understand. We don't get along at all. I've never been close to her, not like other girls. We fuss and argue or fight, then she says how I hurt her. Well she does me too. She even said I never need bring Tom to the house because she says she certainly won't like him. All she ever talks about is B, and I simply can't stand that.

What am I going to do and how am I going to make mother understand? I can't go on like this when I am not welcomed at my father's house. Please write me.

A.

Answer—

Breaking an engagement with a man one has ceased to love is certainly not a sin. In fact, a greater wrong would be done by going on, and marrying the man just because one felt a sense of duty. You are both fortunate to have found out that you were not really in love before you were married.

It is a pity that you feel the way you do towards your mother, for whatever her faults and the different views you have about men and things, she probably has your best interest at heart and is trying to influence you to do the thing that she thinks will be best for you.

Now, of course, I know nothing about these two men but I wonder if there is not some reason why your mother doesn't care for Tom and I wonder if you went about breaking your engagement with B in the proper way. Did you try to keep from hurting him and make the break as easy as possible?

It sounds a bit callous to say that you don't care for him in the least little way. I can see why you have discovered that you do not love him enough to marry him but why should that make you dislike a man you once thought enough of to consider as a husband?

Your mother, perhaps, thinks that you are just infatuated with T. but even if that were the case, and you were not truly in love, her nagging does more harm than good to B's cause.

If Tom is a nice fellow, your mother should accept him and if she doesn't know him, she should certainly be open-minded enough to meet him and reserve her judgment of him until she knows him. Try talking to her calmly without getting angry and try to make her see that marrying a person without loving hem is a worse sin than breaking an engagement.

Louisa.

Still No Trace Of Three Gunmen

EDMONTON (BUP) — The RCMP and city police admitted Friday they were "completely mystified" at the disappearance of three gunmen who robbed a Provincial Goverment Treasury Branch in Edmonton Saturday, May 23, of $28,500.

Police said they had questioned a large number of suspects, including four men travelling in a car with British Colmbia licence plates who were picked up in Calgary, but all were able to account for their actions on the day of the bank hold-up, the first staged in Alberta this year.

Alberta Crews Leave For Northern Areas

EDMONTON — Three lands and forests department crews leave this week-end, for "wilderness areas" of northern Alberta to obtain data on unsurveyed forests.

The job is expected to take all summer, with the crews using aerial photographs as a basis for compiling a forest inventory.

Nine men will survey the area northwest of Manning, 400 miles northwest of Edmonton, a five-man crew will survey the Mackenzie highway district between the 57th parallel and the community of High Level, and an eight-man crew will be flown to the Wabasca River, 250 miles north of Edmonton, and will travel by canoe to the junction of the Wabasca and the Peace River.

EDMONTON—Incorporation of four new rural electrification co-operatives brings to 277 the number of such organizations in Alberta.

Industries Minister Robinson announded recently that the new co-operatives are Cowley, Hayter, Boyle and Fairview.

He reported first applications for loans from the rural electrification "revolving fund" established at the last session of the legislature are being received.

Defence Test For Alberta

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah — Civil defence directors drafted a plan to test defences of eight western states, Hawaii, Alaska, Alberta and British Columbia.

The test would include a mock enemy attack that theoretically would sweep through Alaska, Canada and into the United States.

Civil defence representatives of the area involved set the date of the test for June 20 and planned to chart the details Saturday.

Lt.-Gen. Henry Larsen, president of the National Association of State Civil Defence Directors, said a similar test has been conducted in 13 middle western states.

How many products do we get from crude oil?

From eggs, a hen can expect just one product—chicks. But from crude oil, Imperial refines 679 different products, ranging from weed killers to heavy asphalts. And that is not all—crude oil also supplies petroleum gases and other raw materials for plastics and synthetic rubber.

Oil plays a large and growing part in our everyday living. How many of these questions about it can you answer?

Oil supplies are vital to defence. The gasoline required to move one armoured division 100 miles would run your car for 10 years? 95 years? 350 years?

The average family car could be operated for 350 years on the gasoline needed to move an armoured division 100 miles.

The average weekly pay cheque of Canadians in 1939 would buy 84 gallons of gasoline. How many gallons will today's cheque buy 79? 135? 93?

Even though gasoline road taxes are higher in all provinces, today's average pay cheque will buy 135 gallons.

Scientists believe oil was formed from the remains of tiny sea creatures which lived millions of years ago. Would you say oil is found in rock? pools? swamps?

Oil is usually found far underground in the tiny pores of rock such as limestone or sandstone. The word petroleum is derived from the Latin "petra" and "oleum"—rock oil.

Since 1947, oil companies have spent $775 millions on exploration and development in Alberta. In that time the gross value of all oil produced has been $450 millions? $830 millions? $1,350 millions?

Not quite $450 millions. Oil companies have received much less than this, of course, because from it must be paid field operating expenses, royalties, taxes and other charges.

It takes many millions of dollars in plant and equipment to provide high-quality oil products when and where you need them. How much does this amount to per Imperial employee $3,856? $16,597? $30,715?

Imperial's investment in plant and equipment is $30,715 for each of its 13,500 employees, and it is still rising.
